Curriculum Focus

Reading: Students are learning about character traits and character development. They are also analyzing the story elements.

Writing: Students are writing a personal narrative. They are learning how to narrow down a topic.

Math: Students are finishing up place value and rounding. Next, they will be practicing addition and subtraction skills.

Science: Students finished the interactions and states of matter unit. Students will be learning and investigating electricity and magnetism for the next few weeks.

Social Studies: Students are learning about the different regions of the United States.

We have iPADS! Students (and teachers) are excited that technology is finally in our classrooms. We will begin using the iPads for students to practice various academic websites and apps.

Responsibility

A responsibility is something you are expected to do. This could be a task, such as picking up after yourself, or how to act, such as being safe and courteous. How are you responsible for yourself and others?
